

Australian
National University

Multilateral Development Cooperation with Chinese Characteristics? Insights from the United Nations

China, Development and International Order Seminar Series

How has China's engagement with development-related processes at the United Nations (UN) evolved over the last two decades? What are its implications for multilateral development cooperation?

In this seminar, Dr Sebastian Haug will unpack China's engagement with the UN development pillar in the context of China's Belt and Road Initiative and broader South-South cooperation agenda, and then identify key features and implications of multilateral development cooperation "with Chinese characteristics".

Speaker

Dr Sebastian Haug, German Institute of Development & Sustainability

Chair

Associate Professor Amy King, Strategic and Defence Studies Centre

Details

5-6.30pm, Wed 12 June 2024, Zoom

Register

Project Website

This seminar series is part of a research project on How China Shapes the International Economic Order, generously funded by the Westpac Scholars Trust and the Strategic and Defence Studies Centre, and led by Associate Professor Amy King from the Coral Bell School of Asia Pacific Affairs.