

Reverting to the Norm: Locating the Parliament in Indonesia's Democratic Regression

Department of Political and Social Change
Coral Bell School of Asia Pacific Affairs
ANU College of Asia and the Pacific

How should we locate Indonesia's parliament in the apparent rollback of democracy in the country? This article argues that we need to contextualise the undermining of legislative power since the brief period of reformasi within the legacies of Indonesia's post-independence history of autocratic government. Inherited presidential practice, limited constitutional reform and the parliament's own internal procedures have contributed to a weakening of parliament.

Speakers

Dr Stephen Sherlock
ANU Department of Political and Social Change

Details

Tue 18 March 2025
12:30-2PM AEDT
PSC Reading Room 4.27,
Hedley Bull Building

Australian National University